

increased mobility of the glycosylation reaction. Finally, glycated hemoglobin is an effective indicator of long-term blood glucose levels and has been widely used in the diagnosis of diabetes.